M. R. Blevins, son of Allen and Clara (Owens) Blevins, was born in Bradley County, Tenn., May, 1837. The father was born in Sullivan County, Tenn., received a common-school education here, and was here married. He afterward moved to Bradley County while the Indians were still there, and assisted in banding them together to take them to the reservation set apart for them. Mr. Blevins continued to live in Tennessee until 1851, when he immigrated to Independence County, Ark., where he died the same year. His wife, Clara Blevins, was born in North Carolina, her parents leaving that State when she was but a small girl. She was married to Mr. Blevins in Meigs County, and became the mother of eleven children, seven now living: John, Michael R., Gideon T., Mrs. Lorinda Tunnel, Mrs. Malinda Millsap, Mrs. Myra Teal and Mrs. Mary Wood. Those deceased are William, Allen, Catherine and an infant. M. R. Blevins was but twelve years of age when his parents moved to Arkansas, and his father dying soon after, the support of the family was largely dependent upon his efforts. He only received a common-school education, and remained with his mother until twenty-one years of age, when he married Miss Elizabeth Wakefield, daughter of William and Jane Wakefield, who were originally from Mason County, Tenn. This union, which has been a long and happy one, was blessed by the birth of eleven children, nine now living: Allen, James, Charles, Mike, Robert, Mrs. Amanda Copeheart, Mattie, Clara and Ida. The two children deceased were named Florence and Annie May. Mr. and Mrs.
Blevins live on the farm that they first settled, and raised their first crop with the aid of a yoke of cattle. During the war Mr.
Blevins enlisted in Company A, First Cherokee Volunteer Cavalry, Confederate Army, and was in the battles of Honey Springs, Fort Wayne, Newtonia and others of less importance. During his absence Mrs.
Blevins carried on the farm, doing the greater part of the work herself, and often went a distance of forty miles to mill. She was energetic and determined and kept her family from want. Returning home after his term of service had expired, he and twenty-three others, including his captain, took a trip through Old and New Mexico and into Colorado, where they remained until the close of the war. He then came home and resumed farming and stock raising, and handled cattle for about eighteen years. He has now an excellent farm of 340 acres, 140 under cultivation, and has good buildings on the same. It was largely through Mr. Blevins' influence and efforts that the district school building was erected, and his children are all blessed with a good common-school education. Mr. Blevins is a strong Democrat, politically, and cast his first presidential vote for Breckenridge. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and his wife is a member of the Baptist Church.

On November 20, 1862, in a report of the forces in East Tennessee, the 5th Tennessee was listed as unattached, with an estimated strength of 300 men. On December 27, just after the organization of the regiment it was reported in Scott County. A regimental report dated March 14, 1864 at Tunnel Hill, Georgia, gave the following account of its activities up until that time "We were kept on duty in East Tennessee and the border counties of Kentucky until July 25, 1863, when we were ordered by Colonel Scott (our Brigade Commander) to proceed into Kentucky, participating in the fight at Richmond, Kentucky, July 27. We moved on immediately and reached Paris, Kentucky, the following evening, where we were repulsed and cut off from the brigade, and did not come up with the brigade again until we reached Tennessee. At the evacuation of East Tennessee August 20, we brought up the rear of General Buckner's Army. We had a fight with the enemy at Loudon, and held them in check until the bridge was burned. We followed after the army, and fought the enemy at Ringgold, Georgia, on September 11, 1863. We had several skirmishes during the following days preceding the Chickamauga Battle. We participated in that fight the 19th and 20th September. On the 24th, we were ordered under General Forrest into East Tennessee, driving the enemy back as far as Philadelphia. We were then ordered to Cottonport and crossed the Tennessee River October 1, participating in the fray at McMinnville, and had a very severe fight in Shelbyville on the 7th October. We recrossed the Tennessee River at Courtland on 11 October, and moved up to Dalton, and thence back to East Tennessee and participated in the fight at Philadelphia under Colonel Morrison, and then back to Dalton, and were engaged with the enemy at the time of their advance on Dalton February 25, 1864, and are now encamped near Tunnel Hill, Georgia."

During this period the regiment was reported in Colonel John B. Palmer's Brigade at Big Creek Gap on February 20, and March 19, 1863. On April 25, it was reported in Colonel J. S. Scott's Brigade, which was on outpost and special duty. In Scott's Brigade at the time of the expedition into Kentucky on July 25, were the 10th Confederate Cavalry, 1st Louisiana, 2nd (Ashby's), 5th (McKenzie's) Tennessee Regiments, the 5th North Carolina Battalion, and Marshall's Battery. At Chickamauga, Scott's Brigade was in Brigadier General John Pegram's Division, and was composed of a detachment of John H. Morgan's Command, 1st Louisiana, 2nd, 5th Tennessee Regiments and Robinson's Louisiana Battery. The 5th reported 16 casualties. The attack on Philadelphia under Colonel Morrison was made by Morrison's and

Dibrell's Brigades on October 20, and the 5th had been detached from its own brigade for this expedition.

At Dalton November 19, 1863 Brigadier General W. Y. C. Humes was given command of a brigade in Major General Joseph Wheeler's Cavalry Corps composed of James T. Wheeler's, James E. Carter's, Ashby's, Baxter Smith's, and McKenzie's Regiments. All of the brigade except McKenzie's Regiment was reported as serving at the time with Lieutenant General James Longstreet in East Tennessee, as part of Brigadier General Frank C. Armstrong's Division. On December 31, the regiment was reported in Brigadier General H. B. Davidson's Brigade, of Major General John A. Wharton's Division. This brigade was reported as consisting of Wheeler's, Ashby's, Baxter Smith's, and McKenzie's Regiments, the first three having returned from Longstreet's East Tennessee campaign. By April 30, Humes had been given command of a division, and Colonel James T. Wheeler was in command of the brigade in Humes' Division with the same members, plus the 9th Tennessee Cavalry Battalion, under Major Akin. By June 30, Colonel Henry M. Ashby had been given command of the brigade, and it was known from this time on as Ashby's Brigade.

In General Wheeler's report of the fighting around La Grange) and Newnan, Georgia in late July, 1864, he makes mention of Ashby's Brigade as being engaged, and states he sent Colonel McKenzie, with his own and the 3rd Arkansas Regiments "to gain the front of the enemy moving toward Franklin," and that McKenzie captured 200 or 300 prisoners.

A report from Co. "A" dated at Hardeeville, South Carolina December 31, 1864, stated only: "This company has been in every general engagement of General Wheeler's command since the last muster." Co. "B" gave a more detailed report of its movements during November-December 1864: "Leaving Cads-den, Alabama November 1864, marching by way of Talladega, Alabama to La Grange, Georgia, thence to Griffin, Georgia; learning there that the enemy was making a road in the direction of Macon, Georgia, we moved there, remaining one day. From there to Dublin, to Millen, Georgia. Engaged enemy November 28 near Buckhead Church. Engaged December 4 near Waynesboro, Georgia. From thence, marched in direction of Savannah, from thence crossing the Savannah River to South Carolina, scouting and picketing near 'Hardyville,' South Carolina."

On January 31, 1865, Ashby's Brigade, with the same members, was reported in Lieutenant General Hardee's Department of South Carolina, Florida, and Georgia. On February 2, the 5th was reported as the only regiment at the headquarters of Humes' Division. On February 8, Major General C. L. Stevenson stated; "The 5th Tennessee Cavalry, now at Branchville, South Carolina, is subject to my orders. Hold them there for the present so as to cover a movement of Cummings' Brigade should it be necessary to retire from the river." On March 6, Brigadier General Robertson wrote: "Express to Captain Lillard and his gallant Tennesseans my thanks for their handsome behavior yesterday." On March 8, a detachment of the 5th under Lieutenant Colonel Montgomery was driven back by Sherman's advance cavalry at the bridge over the Lumber River.

On April 9, 1865, in the Organization List of General Joseph E. Johnston's Army in North Carolina, McKenzie's Regiment was listed as a part of Lieutenant General Wade Hampton's Cavalry Corps.

As part of Hampton's Cavalry Corps, the 5th was included in the terms of the convention which General Johnston made with General Sherman for the parole of his forces on April 26, 1865 at Greensboro, North Carolina.

Tunnel Hill A North Georgia City County: Whitfield

The rugged North Georgia mountains stood tall, and they alone blocked the southern push of the railroads in the 1840s. Chetoogetta Mountain was most formidable of all. To connect Atlanta and Chattanooga a tunnel must be dug by the Western and Atlantic Railroad. Plans for the tunnel began in the late 1830's, but a great panic and depression delayed construction for almost 10 years. The railroad provided passenger and freight service during this time, carrying the freight, and letting the passengers walk, over the mountain. A town came to life in the area to service the needs of the passengers from the train and the "sappers" building the tunnel. As unimpressive as it may seem now, this 1477 foot tunnel was the engineering marvel of its time. A plaque at the west end of the tunnel reads: "The Excavation of the west end begun July 15, 1848 & the first opening effected Oct. 31, 1848. The first train of cars passed through May 9, 1850. Length of excavation in this end 575 feet and of the tunnel 1477 feet." There are actually two tunnels in Tunnel Hill, the "new" tunnel was begun in 1926 and completed in 1928 and is 1527 feet long. The tunnel at Tunnel Hill (sometimes called Tunnelsville) was a major target of James Andrews and his men in The Great Locomotive Chase. By the time the raiders reached here the Texas was in sight so the tunnel was spared.

During the battle of Chickamauga the Clisby-Austin house, which still stands, was used as a hospital. Confederate General John B. Hood was sent here after the amputation of his leg which accompanied him on his journey (if he died of infection they could be buried together). The leg is buried in the family cemetery near the house.

In December, 1863, after the Confederate defeat at Chattanooga, Patrick Cleburne wrote his proposal to draft slaves into the army in return for their emancipation at Tunnel Hill.

Gen. George Thomas approached the area in May of 1864 and ran into Confederate skirmishers defending the hill on May 6. After testing the line, Thomas sent a division to battle the rebels. Outnumbered and overwhelmed, the Confederates did not have time to damage the tunnel as ordered. Although relatively minor, the skirmish marked the beginning of the Atlanta Campaign.

General William Sherman used the Clisby-Austin house as his headquarters during the battle of Dalton. It was here that Sherman was having an early supper on May 9th, 1864 when General James McPherson sent word that he was within sight of Resaca and moving towards the town.

Directions: I75, exit 138. Go 2 miles on Ga. 201 south to Downtown. To see the tunnel and station, continue on 201 across the railroad tracks and make an immediate left on Oak. The tunnel and the Clisby-Austin House are a mile from here. The original Tunnel Hill depot is behind you on the left.

Resided in 1851 in Meigs county, TN.

"David M. Blevins, planter and merchant, was born in Sullivan County, October 13, 1833, the son of James and Ruth (Rockhold) Blevins, of English and Scots- Irish stock, and natives of Sullivan County; the former born January 22, 1802, and deceased in Meigs County, February 10, 1849, and the latter born February 29, 1808, and still living. The parents were married, about 1826, and spent about twenty-three happy years in this county, and the mother has never remarried. He was a Democrat, and both were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Our subject, one of nine children, was educated at Decatur, and left the farm, and began life as a merchant. In August, 1859, he opened a general store at Decatur, but, in 1861, he enlisted in Company I, Third Confederate Tennessee Infantry under the command of Captain N. J. Lillard., and was in Virginia until February, 1862, and took part at Manassas (the first) and at other places. He was also in East Tennessee, and in the following December, at Vicksburg, where he was captured with Pemberton's forces., paroled, and in September following exchanged, entering service again at Decatur, Ga. He was an adjutant for three years, but enlisted as second lieutenant. On his return, in 1865, he resumed farming, and in 1873 made a tour of ten months through California, Oregon and Washington Territories. He then engaged in the grain traffic on the Tennessee River, and in 1875 he turned to the plow again, and since 1876 has been at his present home, where since October 1880 he has also had a store of general merchandise. Fannie Hoyle became his wife December 28, 1880. She was born at Cleveland, Tenn., in 1860. Their children are David, born August 22, 1882, and died September 16, 1882; James H., born April 8, 1884, and Hugh, born October 16, 1886. Our subject is a Democrat and a Methodist. "

From Goodspeed's History of Tennessee
Meigs Co. 1887

William F. Blevins, a well-known, enterprising merchant of Darwin Station, Rhea County, was born in Meigs County, October 27, 1835, and isa son of James and Ruth (Rockhold) Blevins. [For further particulars of parents see sketch of A. C. Blevins.] Our subject is one of nine children. He received a common school education, and worked on his father's farm up to the breaking out of the late war. In July, 1862, he entered the Confederate service, enlisting in the Fifth Tennessee Cavalry as 2nd Lieutenant, the captain of the company being W. W. Lillard. Our subject took part in the battles of Perryville, Ky., and Chickamauga Creek, and the Georgia campaign from Dalton to Atlanta, etc. He returned home in the spring of 1865 after an absence of nearly three years. He was second lieutenant of his company. After the war he read law, obtained license to practice but abandoned the profession for mercantile pursuits. For a few years he clerked for his brothers, but afterward entered the business for himself; during all this time he was in Decatur, Meigs County. In 1870 he was appointed clerk and master of the chancery court of Meigs County, and served six years; he was re-appointed to the same office in 1876 and again served six years. He was first appointed to that position by Chancellor D. M. Key, and the second time by Chancellor William M. Bradford. May 11, 1871, he married Miss Mary E. Russell, a native of Meigs County, born September 7, 1842, and this marriage resulted in the birth of four children -- two sons and two daughters, one son being deceased. The children are named as follows: Ethel, born December 8, 1872; Braxton b., born April 27, 1876; William B., born August 12, 1878 and died October 28, 1883; and Daisy May, born December 2, 1881. In the early part of 1883 Mr. Blevins moved to Darwin Station, having purchased a dwelling, a store-house and a remnant stock of goods the previous December. Since that time he has been engaged in merchandising. He is a Democrat in his political views, and he and his wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

On November 20, 1862, in a report of the forces in East Tennessee, the 5th Tennessee was listed as unattached, with an estimated strength of 300 men. On December 27, just after the organization of the regiment it was reported in Scott County. A regimental report dated March 14, 1864 at Tunnel Hill, Georgia, gave the following account of its activities up until that time "We were kept on duty in East Tennessee and the border counties of Kentucky until July 25, 1863, when we were ordered by Colonel Scott (our Brigade Commander) to proceed into Kentucky, participating in the fight at Richmond, Kentucky, July 27. We moved on immediately and reached Paris, Kentucky, the following evening, where we were repulsed and cut off from the brigade, and did not come up with the brigade again until we reached Tennessee. At the evacuation of East Tennessee August 20, we brought up the rear of General Buckner's Army. We had a fight with the enemy at Loudon, and held them in check until the bridge was burned. We followed after the army, and fought the enemy at Ringgold, Georgia, on September 11, 1863. We had several skirmishes during the following days preceding the Chickamauga Battle. We participated in that fight the 19th and 20th September. On the 24th, we were ordered under General Forrest into East Tennessee, driving the enemy back as far as Philadelphia. We were then ordered to Cottonport and crossed the Tennessee River October 1, participating in the fray at McMinnville, and had a very severe fight in Shelbyville on the 7th October. We recrossed the Tennessee River at Courtland on 11 October, and moved up to Dalton, and thence back to East Tennessee and participated in the fight at Philadelphia under Colonel Morrison, and then back to Dalton, and were engaged with the enemy at the time of their advance on Dalton February 25, 1864, and are now encamped near Tunnel Hill, Georgia."

During this period the regiment was reported in Colonel John B. Palmer's Brigade at Big Creek Gap on February 20, and March 19, 1863. On April 25, it was reported in Colonel J. S. Scott's Brigade, which was on outpost and special duty. In Scott's Brigade at the time of the expedition into Kentucky on July 25, were the 10th Confederate Cavalry, 1st Louisiana, 2nd (Ashby's), 5th (McKenzie's) Tennessee Regiments, the 5th North Carolina Battalion, and Marshall's Battery. At Chickamauga, Scott's Brigade was in Brigadier General John Pegram's Division, and was composed of a detachment of John H. Morgan's Command, 1st Louisiana, 2nd, 5th Tennessee Regiments and Robinson's Louisiana Battery. The 5th reported 16 casualties. The attack on Philadelphia under Colonel Morrison was made by Morrison's and Dibrell's Brigades on October 20, and the 5th had been detached from its own brigade for this expedition.

At Dalton November 19, 1863 Brigadier General W. Y. C. Humes was given command of a brigade in Major General Joseph Wheeler's Cavalry Corps composed of James T. Wheeler's, James E. Carter's, Ashby's, Baxter Smith's, and McKenzie's Regiments. All of the brigade except McKenzie's

Regiment was reported as serving at the time with Lieutenant General James Longstreet in East Tennessee, as part of Brigadier General Frank C. Armstrong's Division. On December 31, the regiment was reported in Brigadier General H. B. Davidson's Brigade, of Major General John A. Wharton's Division. This brigade was reported as consisting of Wheeler's, Ashby's, Baxter Smith's, and McKenzie's Regiments, the first three having returned from Longstreet's East Tennessee campaign. By April 30, Humes had been given command of a division, and Colonel James T. Wheeler was in command of the brigade in Humes' Division with the same members, plus the 9th Tennessee Cavalry Battalion, under Major Akin. By June 30, Colonel Henry M. Ashby had been given command of the brigade, and it was known from this time on as Ashby's Brigade.

In General Wheeler's report of the fighting around La Grange) and Newnan, Georgia in late July, 1864, he makes mention of Ashby's Brigade as being engaged, and states he sent Colonel McKenzie, with his own and the 3rd Arkansas Regiments "to gain the front of the enemy moving toward Franklin," and that McKenzie captured 200 or 300 prisoners.

A report from Co. "A" dated at Hardeeville, South Carolina December 31, 1864, stated only: "This company has been in every general engagement of General Wheeler's command since the last muster." Co. "B" gave a more detailed report of its movements during November-December 1864: "Leaving Cadsden, Alabama November 1864, marching by way of Talladega, Alabama to La Grange, Georgia, thence to Griffin, Georgia; learning there that the enemy was making a road in the direction of Macon, Georgia, we moved there, remaining one day. From there to Dublin, to Millen, Georgia. Engaged enemy November 28 near Buckhead Church. Engaged December 4 near Waynesboro, Georgia. From thence, marched in direction of Savannah, from thence crossing the Savannah River to South Carolina, scouting and picketing near 'Hardyville,' South Carolina."

On January 31, 1865, Ashby's Brigade, with the same members, was reported in Lieutenant General Hardee's Department of South Carolina, Florida, and Georgia. On February 2, the 5th was reported as the only regiment at the headquarters of Humes' Division. On February 8, Major General C. L. Stevenson stated; "The 5th Tennessee Cavalry, now at Branchville, South Carolina, is subject to my orders. Hold them there for the present so as to cover a movement of Cummings' Brigade should it be necessary to retire from the river." On March 6, Brigadier General Robertson wrote: "Express to Captain Lillard and his gallant Tennesseans my thanks for their handsome behavior yesterday." On March 8, a detachment of the 5th under Lieutenant Colonel Montgomery was driven back by Sherman's advance cavalry at the bridge over the Lumber River.

On April 9, 1865, in the Organization List of General Joseph E. Johnston's Army in North Carolina, McKenzie's Regiment was listed as a part of Lieutenant General Wade Hampton's Cavalry Corps.

As part of Hampton's Cavalry Corps, the 5th was included in the terms of the convention which General Johnston made with General Sherman for the parole of his forces on April 26, 1865 at Greensboro, North Carolina.

Tunnel Hill A North Georgia City County: Whitfield

The rugged North Georgia mountains stood tall, and they alone blocked the southern push of the railroads in the 1840s. Chetoogetta Mountain was most formidable of all. To connect Atlanta and Chattanooga a tunnel must be dug by the Western and Atlantic Railroad. Plans for the tunnel began in the late 1830's, but a great panic and depression delayed construction for almost 10 years. The railroad provided passenger and freight service during this time, carrying the freight, and letting the passengers walk over the mountain. A town came to life in the area to service the needs of the passengers from the train and the "sappers" building the tunnel. As unimpressive as it may seem now, this 1477 foot tunnel was the engineering marvel of its time. A plaque at the west end of the tunnel reads: "The Excavation of the west end begun July 15, 1848 & the first opening effected Oct. 31, 1848. The first train of cars passed through May 9, 1850. Length of excavation in this end 575 feet and of the tunnel 1477 feet." There are actually two tunnels in Tunnel Hill, the "new" tunnel was begun in 1926 and completed in 1928 and is 1527 feet long. The tunnel at Tunnel Hill (sometimes called Tunnelsville) was a major target of James Andrews and his men in The Great Locomotive Chase. By the time the raiders reached here the Texas was in sight so the tunnel was spared.

During the battle of Chickamauga the Clisby-Austin house, which still stands, was used as a hospital. Confederate General John B. Hood was sent here after the amputation of his leg which accompanied him on his journey (if he died of infection they could be buried together). The leg is buried in the family cemetery near the house.

In December, 1863, after the Confederate defeat at Chattanooga, Patrick Cleburne wrote his proposal to draft slaves into the army in return for their emancipation at Tunnel Hill.

Gen. George Thomas approached the area in May of 1864 and ran into Confederate skirmishers defending the hill on May 6. After testing the line, Thomas sent a division to battle the rebels. Outnumbered and overwhelmed, the Confederates did not have time to damage the tunnel as ordered. Although relatively minor, the skirmish marked the beginning of the Atlanta Campaign.

General William Sherman used the Clisby-Austin house as his headquarters during the battle of Dalton. It was here that Sherman was having an early supper on May 9th, 1864 when General James McPherson sent word that he was within sight of Resaca and moving towards the town.

Directions: I75, exit 138. Go 2 miles on Ga. 201 south to Downtown. To see the tunnel and station, continue on 201 across the railroad tracks and make an immediate left on Oak. The tunnel and the Clisby-Austin House are a mile from here. The original Tunnel Hill depot is behind you on the left.

Resided in 1851 in Meigs county, TN.
